If the only tool you have is a hammer, you tend to treat everything as if it were a nail.

The law can get spotted in many aspects of UX design or development process, for instance:

The downside of having established design patterns is limited user experience. In this case the design process becomes pattern-centric instead of being user-centric.